Dear friends of DAAD Thailand,

After a year that will always be associated with the death of HM King Bhumibol Adulyadej we are looking forward for many opportunities in 2017 for exchange and new co-operations between Thailand and Germany.

The higher education landscape in Thailand is moving with fresh discussions about admission tests, academic quality assurance and, most recently, plans to form an independent Ministry of Higher Education. Within the ASEAN region, we notice a growing momentum towards inner-ASEAN academic mobility, degree accreditation, credit transfer and a shared quality assurance framework. DAAD is happy to share the expertise of friends and colleagues from British Council, Campus France, EP-Nuffic, with ASEAN Secretariat and the ASEAN Senior Officials Meeting on Education (SOM-ED).

Over the years, the global role of Thailand has shifted as well. The kingdom of Thailand is no longer recipient of development aid, but it has become a highly valued partner providing higher education to students and researchers from neighbouring countries: During the last few months we awarded a total of 26 scholarships to students who do their Masters and PhDs at academic centres of excellence, supported by DAAD. These well-established institutions are SEAMEO-TROPED at Mahidol University, SEAMEO-SEARCA at Kasetsart University and the TGGs at King Mongkut's University of Technology North Bangkok (KMUTNB).

For this newsletter we took the rather unusual decision of featuring a single university: KMUTNB. This is simply because there are so many exciting things going on between the university and its German partners, that I have visited North Bangkok nearly monthly.

If you feel like inviting us to your university, please feel free to do so! I am always happy to talk to students and researchers. Maybe I can learn about existing or future cooperations at your university?

Last but not least, 2017 also marks 60 years of permanent DAAD representation in Thailand and we will not miss this opportunity to invite long standing friends and celebrate.

Goodbye from Julius Herr (kulturweit-volunteer)

After an exciting year, my internship at DAAD Thailand comes to an end. I am deeply grateful for the interesting and instructive time I spent here. From the first day on, I felt very welcome and part of the DAAD team. Thanks to all colleagues for their great support and kindness!

During this year, I learned a lot about both the Thai and the German education system. I have seen many universities, schools and education fairs. I really appreciate all these unique impressions.

Thailand with its rich and beautiful culture was a great place of residence, and I am pretty sure, that I will come back sooner or later!

On that note: ขอบคุณมากครับ แล้วพบกันใหม่นะครับ

Relaunch of our Website

New Internet Presence of DAAD Thailand

On 20th December 2016 our new website was officially launched. After half a year's process, we are more than happy to finally present the result. The new design, that is aligned with the worldwide internet presence of DAAD, shall clearly provide all the information you need on "Study & Research in Germany".

There are some new special features, for instance an integrated DAAD scholarship database, shortcuts to social media or a news section. The content is available in German, English and Thai language, and finally you will notice that this website plays nicely with mobile devices and small screens — you are invited to grab a scholarship straight from your phone.

We cordially hope, that you enjoy your stay on www.daad.or.th

Official celebration of the relaunch with Mr. Jan Blezinger, Head of Press and Cultural Section, German Embassy, Bangkok.

KMUTNB Special

Prof. Dr. habil. Suchart Siengchin new President of the King Mongkut's University of Technology North Bangkok

On 16th of January 2017 Prof. Suchart officially became the new president of the KMUTNB.

Prof. Suchart is not only a highly prestigious expert in the field of polymer and composite processing but also an outstanding example for the international success of higher education made in Germany. He started his academic career in Germany where he received his degree of a "Diplom Ingenieur" in Mechanical Engineering from Giessen/Friedberg. He also completed two MSc programmes at Aalen and Erlangen-Nürnberg. In 2008 he did his PhD "Dr.-Ing" at University of Kaiserslautern. Most recently, he defended his habilitation thesis at the Faculty of Engineering of TU Chemnitz, meeting the formal requirement to become a full professor at a German university.

Prof. Dr. Suchart Siengchien lectures Materials and Production Engineering at the Sirindhorn International Thai-German Graduate School of Engineering (TGGS). An institution that was jointly established by the RWTH Aachen University and its partner university KMUTNB through the support of DAAD. TGGS introduced the Aachen model of industry-oriented education to Southeast Asia.

We send our sincere congratulations for his successful habilitation, for his his promotion to university president and we wish him all the best for his new position!

University Summer courses in Germany 2017

More than 40 Thai students applied for the DAAD Scholarships for university summer courses 2017 in Germany. Bachelor students (in their second or third year) of any subject can apply for this scholarship. They need to prove a good knowledge of German on advance level (Goethe B1 certificate or equivalent). The scholarship holders will receive funding to attend summer courses at German Universities covering German language cultural studies during about three weeks.

If you are interested to apply next year, please see the official programme description here.

This year, we asked all applicants to send us a short video clip about the following Topic: Change by Exchange. What can Germany learn from Thailand? - *Wandel durch Austausch: Was kann Deutschland von Thailand lernen?

All students did a great job! They sent us very creative and entertaining video clips. We thank them for their commitment and participation.
